Description

This work was conceived as a gesture of upcycling the moribund optical data storage systems on the one hand, and on the other hand to achieve a sustainable destruction of data remains. DVD media consists of two layers of plastic that enclose the actual film layer on which the data is stored digitally. To modify the DVDs, this layer is dissolved with chemicals and provided with the help of ferric, shellac and paint with an organic-looking patina. As part of the "Pictures at an Exhibition" installation, these discs are acoustically and visually displayed with the aid of a custom-made camera laser player. As a result, the prior storage disks mutate to true analog audio and video storage media.

Size: 16,40cm X 14,40cm X 3,7cm

* Lightbox included (LED).
